

Autumn / Winter 2007

Autumn Winter 2007 brings a complete new look to fashion. As Designers shy away from the feminine romantic look we have seen season after season. The tailored suit in varying themes - military, urban warrior or country equestrian are all back.

Volume - We live in an era where women are able to express their dominance and so volume in our clothes. This is a continuation of the balloon skirts and dresses of summer. This season we will see skirts getting fuller or tight as a pencil. We will see oversized collars and sleeves. Oversized hats making a statement. You can almost say they are an accessory on their own. Cocoon Volume - Balenciaga Sleeves - Big Collars - Baby Doll

Dresses - Short Dresses -

Long Tunics - Waist Cinched Frocks. Yes - dresses are here to stay. Empire line dresses, empire bra dresses, easy jersey knit longer sleeve dresses, waistline enhancing frocks, or simple waistline skimming sixties style shifts and dropped waist shifts are available.

Layering - Skinny Leggings - Tights -

Sheer Over Opaque Tops. Opaque Hosiery layered with skirts and boots are seen on the catwalk for Autumn Winter 2007.

Opulence - The era is grand with gold and metallics, fur trims found on shoes, jackets, bags and hats.

Fabrics - The fabrics are quite heavy this season. With wool, textured knits, tailored tartans and tweeds being popular.

Masculine - The masculine tailored suit in greys, black or browns are popular with any business women. The trousers more of a boxed square appearance with a fitted more tailored jacket which still shows the women's shape and style.

Colours - The colour grey and the wear is monochromatic. Gradual tone and shade changes from deepest charcoal to steel blue grey to metallic or ice grey.

For the person who can't wear grey try, earth browns, ochre and rust tones, red, burgundy, purple, plum, deep blue, khaki olive, black and white.

If you are determined to keep the feminine look then add a little fur or gold to bring the outfit to this season.

Accessories - Accessories this season are seen in hats, fur collars, clutch bags and gloves. Coloured hand bags are popular. Animal print is the favourite for any piece of accessory.
